

Learn from Canada's leading research methodology experts.

JUNE 2022, CALGARY, ALBERTA

CCRAM Sessions features courses from Canada's leading research methodology experts for researchers of all levels. Held in-person at the University of Calgary's downtown campus, attendees can choose from two, three or five-day course blocks. Expect to enhance and broaden your skills in data analysis and research design, expand your professional network, and find new collaborators.

Who will benefit?

New, intermediate and experienced researchers in academic, government and industry who rely on behavioural science methods - in whatever field and wherever in the world you are located - seeking to update and expand your training in research methods and data analysis will benefit from CCRAM Sessions.

What is CCRAM?

Located at the Haskayne School of Business in Calgary, Alberta, the Canadian Centre for Research Analysis and Methods (CCRAM) is the preeminent Canadian destination for academics and researchers to learn from the country's leading behavioural science methodologists.
